

1. The only person that really comes to mind when I think about who has influenced me is my dad. From a very young age, my dad tried to teach my brother and I the significance of “Manners and Respect.” I learned that significance a little bit faster (and better) than my brother did. Because of that, manners and respect has been instilled into my being, always saying “Yes, Ma’am-No, Sir.” I remember one time where I was out to dinner with my girlfriend and her family. Her sister “boyfriend” (they don’t like labels but that’s what I’m going to call him for simplicities sake) questioned me on why I called our waitress ma’am. It shook me that a person didn’t understand the manners and respect that I grew up with. I guess you can say that my dad instilled the “Manners and Respect” mantra into my very being, so much so that I’m currently thinking about getting the phrase tattooed on my arm.

2. This is the link to my app. It is a very short “choose your own adventure” game.

<https://studio.code.org/projects/applab/blvCsrzpNcBVvcay7yynQksO-FK1yKrPDLAektpuMDk>

3. This is my Game. It is a chase game where you (the dog) must chase the cat and avoid the dinosaur. You earn a point if you touch the cat and loose one if you touch the dinosaur.

https://studio.code.org/projects/playlab/vI9IKtMdbUwH7o59dD0RKDzO2IeUc8uOG_FHTTj242A

4. I showed my game and my app to my girlfriend. She said that the app was good but short and when I showed her the game she said, “I think it’s cute.”